NoaNet sets open house celebration at library

Published: November 1st, 2012

By The Ritzville Adams County Journal

An open house celebration for the completion of high-speed broadband in Ritzville is scheduled for Nov. 9 from 12-2 p.m. at the Ritzville Public Library. The celebration provides community members with an opportunity to discover how high-speed Internet can benefit businesses, schools, hospitals and the residents of Adams County. Snacks and refreshments are provided at the event.

NoaNet is overseeing construction of two federal American Reinvestment and Recovery Act grants to bring high-speed Internet to schools, hospitals, emergency response agencies, libraries, colleges and universities in underserved communities across the state of Washington.

For more information, contact info@washingtonbroadband.org or call 206-652-9506. The Ritzville Public Library is located at 302 West Main Street in Ritzville.
